Efficiency, Honesty, Enthusiasm, Friendliness, these are the qualities that first occur to me in describing (BCAS) paramedics and dispatchers about when you inquire in your letter to the Chilliwack Times of June 24, 2008.

Through-out my personal dealings with (BCAS) paramedics and dispatchers in a period of many years. I have found that they have helped me to survive many folds over. They have calmed my fears, they have been the nurturers that you seek in a period of illness and fears with a warm kind smile, a soft touch, and never allowing themselves to show their own pains and hurts caused by the overwork they continually thrive through,

I feel sure that the qualities I have described would be essential for our Government to allow them a secure financial peace of mind, before we all find ourselves deprived of such outstanding help and love.

Yours very sincerely,

Marie Long
